I. Ad Campaign of the Year

This is for big bold ideas, storytelling and originality of thinking. This award may incorporate a dual-agency entry whereby the creative agency and the media agency will enter together. Both aspects of the campaigns will be judged together if submitted as such.

JUDGING CRITERIA

Judges will look for tangible measures of effectiveness and how the campaign delivered a business impact. Entries must include context that helps highlight the scale of the challenge. Judges will examine originality of creative concept from storyboard to post-production; choice of talent, script, music selection and multi-channel executions. Weighting is as follows:

30%: on strategy

30%: on execution

40%: on proven results and effectiveness

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Submit copy no more than 1000 words, outlining the concept and strategy; the campaign execution (both creative and media for dual entries); and proven results and effectiveness including ROI figure (e.g. incremental value produced by the campaign, minus the total cost of the campaign, divided by the cost of the campaign).

Please explicitly state in addition to the objectives and effectiveness, the WHY behind the idea. If possible, allude to the budget allocated and what was achieved within those parameters. A copy of the media plan is also required if it is a dual entry.

It is compulsory to include an endorsement from the client of the brand you work for, confirming details in the entry are correct. All campaign submissions will undergo a verification process which asks clients to confirm these details.

- These images may be used in the awards presentation and the AdNews Agency of the Year winners supplement.
- Any information provided may be reproduced by AdNews in print, or online.
- Any information that is not for publication should be clearly marked 'For Judges Eyes Only'.

NATURE OF WORK

The nature of work an agency does for a client must be made clear, whether an agency holds the entire account for a client, or works on a piece of the business. When listing clients on their books, agencies must outline what portion of the clients' core account they hold and the value of that client in billings. If it is for a subsidiary business, or a division within a larger parent company, that must be specified, and the value of that client in billings must also be specified. It should also be made clear whether an agency works with clients on a project, or retained basis. Services including, but not limited to, search marketing, media planning & buying, full service, programmatic services, must be specified.

For example, if a media agency holds the full media planning & buying account for a client, they must outline the value of that account in billings. If an agency works on a client for search marketing, that should be made clear. AdNews welcomes work that showcases innovation and creativity that goes beyond the traditional scope of the industry but intentional scam work will not be tolerated. All entries must show that ideas were viable, had set objectives and were developed in good faith.
